PREFACE

Perhaps no city in the entire Appalachian region has made more marked progress along commercial and industrial lines, that are absolutely without the slightest evidence of especial promotion, or more expansion than has been accomplished by Bristol between the years 1905 and 1911. The crushing depression that swept and partially paralyzed a great section of the country in 1907 stayed, but did not stop the business growth of Bristol.

There are three elements which serve to make this a city of continued progress. One of these is the large number of manufacturing plants that operate throughout the twelve months of the year; another is the progressiveness as well as the aggressiveness of numerous jobbing houses whose heads are constantly reaching out to the South Atlantic, Gulf and Western States for trade, competing successfully against the greater wholesale markets of Baltimore, Cincinnati and St. Louis, the closest jobbing centers of consequence on the border line of the North and South. The third element to Bristol's progress is the number and variety of stores in the retail district who lose no opportunity to attract to this city trade from a territory one hundred miles distant in all directions. Supporting these institutions are three colleges of almost national renown, bringing to Bristol each year several hundred students from practically all the States in the Union and distributing nearly $100,000 among business houses.

Bristol is an extensive manufacturing point for iron products, chief of which are car wheels for steam dump carts for mines, engines and boilers, stoves and ranges, well and irrigating pumps and numerous other smaller articles of commerce. The city is said to be the largest actual distributing point for hardwoods in the Appalachian region. Notwithstanding that 1910 was regarded as a dull year in building operations, the lumber and building material plants in Bristol showed an increase of nearly 17 per cent. over the same period for 1909, and this progress has been more than duplicated during the first nine months of 1911. Not only does Bristol manufacture from her hardwoods material used in the construction of high class residence and office buildings, but among the products commanding increased sales turned out at local plants are coffins and caskets, washboards and egg crates, bank, store and court-house fixtures, account registers and lace cabinets and numerous other articles that find a ready sale

Bristol is the home of one of the largest paper pulp mills in the country. It is the center of an immense tanning industry, and leather belts made in Bristol are famous the world over. A great variety of chemicals is manufactured in Bristol from minerals that are found in this immediate section, practically all of the sodiums known to commerce being the products of a million-dollar plant. The city is engaged in the extensive manufacture of hubs and spokes, silax, flour and feed-stuffs, pharmaceutical preparations and propriety remedies and distilled spirits.

During the year 1910 Bristol banks showed an increase of 17 per cent. in deposits. This was done after $1,250,000 had been withdrawn for new enterprises or for increase the capacity of enterprises already established. Bristol occupies a peculiar advantage as a manufacturing point because of its location on the very edge of the coal and coke fields and for the present it has an abundance of cheap electric power, supplied from a dam built especially for the accommodation of this city. Bristol is well lighted, rapidly becoming one of the best lighted cities of its size in the country, dating from the entry into the city last year of the Dougherty interest of New York.

Water for domestic consumption is supplied by direct pressure from springs located in the hills five miles distant from the city. The streets are well paved and both the cities of Bristol, Va., and Bristol, Tenn., are expending large sums annually in the grading and paving of streets, laying new sidewalks, extending the sewer systems and adding to the facilities of the public school buildings.

The city is located in the heart of one of the finest agricultural and fruit regions in Virginia or Tennessee. Noted experts, after a careful investigation of the soils and exposures surrounding Bristol on all sides, have declared that in the vicinity of Bristol are apple lands that will produce as marvelous fruit as any section of Virginia, and there are abundant opportunities here for the cultivation of the peach as a commercial crop.

The city has an altitude at the railroad crossing of 1,760 feet and the residence sections are nearer 2,000 feet altitude. There is no hot period in Bristol, but every day and night during the summer season is a delight. Sheltered by mountain ranges that cut off and temper the winds from the frigid North, the winters in Bristol are much more agreeable than at many points further South.

Although Bristol during years past has claimed many beautiful homes, the next two years will see constructed a large number of residences surrounded by spacious grounds.

Leading out from the city are highest class of macadamized roads. The city is on the great highway between Memphis, on the Mississippi river, Washington and New York. Millions of dollars are going into macadamized roads in the counties tributary to this city.

The home-seeker in search of an ideal climate, a hospitable people and a city offering exceptional facilities for a higher education of young men and women, and desiring to locate in an atmosphere of religious tone and real worth will find all these elements in Bristol.

Plain Talks on Fertilizers

How to Get the Greatest Possible Yield per Acre

It is a well-known scientific fact that in order to produce the very greatest possible yield from any soil it must contain an actual excess over and above all demands that can possibly be made on it by the plants.

sold to Southern farmers last year; and every year the demand becomes greater.

The best results in producing corn, the good old stand-by crop of the South, follow the application of 200 to 300 pounds of the right

Many farmers will feed their stock as much nourishing food as they can possibly assimilate, yet will starve their crops on the mistaken notion that they are "economizing" on fertilizer. The experiences of farmers, government experts, and agriculturists everywhere confirm the fact that plants, like animals, need the fullest possible amount of nourishment that they can obtain if they are to be developed to the utmost.

The economy in fertilizers is not in the amount used but in the ratio of quality to cost. Virginia-Carolina Fertilizers are the best in the world for the least money. More than one million tons were fertilizer. Virginia-Carolina Fertilizers will greatly "increase your yields per acre" of corn or any other crop, even on poor land—and the most wonderful results are produced through its use on good land.

Write today to the nearest office of the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Company for a copy of their latest Year Book or Almanac, a large 130-page book of the most valuable and unprejudiced information for planters and farmers.
