PREFACE

FURNISHED BY LESTER C. BUSCH,
Secretary Bristol Board of Trade, Bristol, Va.-Tenn.

POPULATION CENSUS 1910

Virginia.....	62.47
Tennessee.....	71.48
Total.....	133.95

A STRIDE of the imaginary line which divides Southwest Virginia and Northeast Tennessee, Bristol, Virginia-Tennessee, is one of the highest cities in the Appalachian mountains, having an altitude of about 1760 feet above sea level.

Division of the city by the State line is immaterial so far as the commercial growth of Bristol is concerned. The progress which has been made along all lines is sufficient evidence to convince the most skeptical on this point. The commercial progress of the city can best be appreciated when it is stated that wholesale business in Bristol has increased about 10 per cent in the last year, while manufacturing has made an increase of about 9 per cent.

There are a total of forty-six wholesale houses now doing business in Bristol, while there are forty-one manufacturing and industrial plants. With reference to this subject during the past year, seven new industries were started in Bristol, employing 157 people, and a total capitalization of about $500,000.

On account of its location, Bristol has every advantage from a manufacturing standpoint. It is midway between the ports of the Eastern part of the United States and the ports of the Gulf of Mexico, with direct connection with Panama Canal business, as well as European markets.

210. Oct. 5-1913
211. Dec. 1-1913.

Bristol, by virtue of its altitude and location in the mountains, has considerable advantage as a tourist center and undoubtedly with further development along this line in the next few years, will become one of the foremost resorts in the Appalachians.

The railroads have already recognized the superior advantages afforded by Bristol from the tourist's viewpoint and have put into effect rates for the tourist season from all Eastern, Northern, Southern and Southwestern points. Ample hotel accommodations are to be had, and several places of interest and entertainment are open for the summer each year including Big Creek and Island Park.

Bristol enjoys the reputation of being the center of widely advertised good roads activity and is rapidly becoming the headquarters for the good roads movement in the Central South. All good roads projected in the central section of the South lead to Bristol. Bristol is the common point for all tourists over the roads of this section, on account of the road improvement throughout this section.

Bristol in the near future will be the center also of a thriving community of small farmers by reason of the good roads activity. Already a great many farmers have been attracted to this section because of the fertility of soil and the accessibility of markets.

The city was settled in 1851 and incorporated the following year. The city now has a population approximating 20,000, including residents just outside the incorporated limits. Commission government is in operation on the Tennessee side of the dual city while a mayor and city council are in power on the Virginia side.

The municipal water works system is fed by three springs located adjacent to the city limits. Absolutely pure water is provided by this means, and frequent tests are made in order to insure the community against contaminated water. Every public utility is found in Bristol.

With three colleges—King for young men and Sullins and Virginia Intermont for young women, and a normal institute for negroes as well as a public school system ranking among the best in the country, educational needs are amply cared for. King College is a Presbyterian institution, while Sullins is a Methodist school and Virginia Intermont a Baptist.

Three railroads and a narrow gauge line enter the city and more than 500,000 passengers pass yearly through the Bristol union station gateway. Some of the best trains operating between extreme Southern points and the North and East pass through Bristol daily. Every facility for the expert handling of tonnage, local and foreign, is provided by the railways, the Southern, the Norfolk & Western, the Virginia & Southwestern and the Holston Valley.

Large coal fields to the northwest of the city send an enormous tonnage through Bristol each year, while the vast timber tracts surrounding the city on every side make the city a lumber market ranking among the first in the country. Iron ore, while not mined extensively at this time, is to be found in large quantities in the mountains about the city. Lead and zinc are mined in a small way. Barytes, limestone, shale, clay, manganese, yellow Tripoli and many other minerals are found in abundance in this section and mined to a greater or less extent.

Among the manufactured products turned out daily in Bristol are paper pulp, tanned leather, wood extracts, coffins and caskets, metal siding, ceiling, shingles, metal polish, spotless cleanser, boxes, crates, fine hardwood finishings, spokes, flour, meal, stoves, machine and foundry products including mine car wheels, overalls, workshirts, pharmaceutical products, several patent medicines, boilers, bonded whiskies, books and loose leaf binders, washboards, trunks, brooms, mattresses, cement blocks, pumps, ice, ice cream and many other products.

There are forty-one plants in operation in the city at this time employing more than 1,250 workers and having a monthly payroll of about $100,000. Of the seventy-seven varied industries in the city seventy of them are using electric power.

With the Watauga River harnessed near Elizabethton, Tenn., Bristol is given the advantage of cheap hydro-electric power. Manufacturers are provided with electric power at a low rate; water is cheap; labor is plentiful in the surrounding sections and can be brought to Bristol whenever needed; living is about 10 per cent less in cost than most Southern cities; the death rate is among the lowest in the country.

Every known farm product raised in the temperate zone can be grown in the beautiful country. In addition to farm products there are excellent grazing lands, and fruit abounds when properly cultivated. The farmers in this section are among the most independent people in America, and make in addition to a comfortable living each year, something for a rainy day.

Bristol, unlike most places in the South, has a high type of negro. The negroes have their own business league, and are of a most industrious and prosperous character. Through their business league, they have succeeded in improving the homes of the colored population; have built churches and schools for their own; have gone into merchandising and generally have brought about an uplifting and regenerating influence among their people.

Bristol has opened to the world the largest White Way system enjoyed by any city of its size in the world. It consists of slightly in excess of 200 standards most of which hold five lights, and lights up the entire business section of the city and Anderson Park as well as the two city halls.

Bristol a top of the Appalachians, and looking down upon her fair sisters of the valleys and lowlands, has oftentimes occasion to do a little civic smiling when she considers her many natural advantages and what the art of man has done for her in addition. There have been those who complained but spending some of their money in railroad fares always has the effect of bringing back the smile of pride in the intermountain city. Many have gone forth to other climes but invariably return to good old Bristol if they have the opportunity of doing so; and upon returning, gaze in wonder at the many new works, the many new faces, and the quickened manifestations of public spirit.
