Preface

BRISTOL, VIRGINIA-TENNESSEE

"The Shopping Center of the Appalachians"

"A GOOD PLACE TO LIVE"

Bristol, Virginia-Tennesse, located half in Virginia and half in Tennessee, the boundary line between the two states being the center of the State, the principal shopping street of the city. This line runs directly East and West for a distance of two miles.

Bristol, Tennessee, originally called King's Meadows, was incorported in 1856. Bristol, Virginia, originally called Goodson, was incorporated in 1858.

The city has the unique distinction of having two separate governments, two postoffices, two police departments and two school systems. But in all matters pertaining to civic development they are a single unit.

Located as it is, in a beautiful valley surrounded by mountains on all sides, many of them in view being from 3,800 to 5,000 feet above sea level, Bristol has an elevation of 1,750 feet to 2,000 feet. The slogan on the electric sign across State Street, "A Good Place to Live," is very applicable, for we have all that one could wish to make a good place to live. The wonderful climate, with absence of severe extremes, the mean annual temperature for the year being 54.6 with the lowest in January 34.5 and the highest in July 74.2. There is very little humidity, and an annual rainfall of 41.06 inches, with average of 71 days in the year and one one-hundreth of an inch or more of precipitation. These temperatures are very conducive to good health.

It has an abundant supply of water coming from several springs, and while other cities have suffered for the want of water during severe dry periods, Bristol does not suffer these inconveniences.

It has numerous beautiful homes with well kept lawns and many miles of paved streets.

There are also amusements of all kinds, such as moving picture theatres, baseball, swimming, golf, tennis, trap shooting, and various other sports.

In the neighborhood of Bristol are many places and homes of historic interest. Fort Shelby was erected here in 1771 for the protection of the pioneers from the Indians.

Daniel Boone in his travel from North Carolina to Kentucky passed through this section and there are many tablets erected in his memory.

There still stands many of the old homes, that of Colonel Thomas Goodson, built in 1785; James King, built in 1814; Governor David Campbell's at Abingdon, buit in 1779, and General Wm. Campbell built in 1775.

Bristol is the gate-way and the hub from which all roads radiate to that wonderful section composed of Southwest Virginia, East Tennessee, Western North Carolina and Eastern Kentucky. Rich in minerals, agricultural, manufacturing and commercial interests.

Bristol is on the main line of the Norfolk & Western and Southern Railways and also the Appalachian Division of the Southern Railway, with 24 passenger trains daily in and out of Bristol. It is within a night's ride of the various financial and industrial centers with 24-hour express service to New York and other Eastern points. There are also many bus lines operating out of Bristol.

Bristol is located on the Lee Highway, U. S. Highway No. 11, only 376 miles from Washington and 242 miles from Chattanooga on U. S. Route No. 19 coming from Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia; on U. S. No. 11, Tennessee No. 1 and U. S. No. 411 which connects with the Dixie Highway from Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and other northwest points; on U. S. No. 511 Tennessee No. 34 from Knoxville; U. S. No. 19, Tennessee No. 37, and No. 34 from Asheville; Tennessee No. 34 from Winston-Salem, North Carolina.

These highways lead through valleys and mountains and no more beautiful scenery can be found not excepting the picturesque Rockies; with its blue mountains, green fields, and sparkling streams. In the spring with the foliage of green, rhododendron, dogwood, mountain laurel and hundreds of other wild flowers in bloom. When in the fall, the mountains presenting a rainbow of colors when the leaves begin to turn.

The mountains and fields are filled with game of all kinds and the streams are plentifully supplied with fish such as trout, bass, etc.

When the two national parks, the Shenandoah and Smoky Mountain, are developed, this travel will increase to such an extent that additional highways will have to constructed to take care of it.

Bristol maintains in the Chamber of Commerce a Tourist Bureau for the benefit of the tourists who pass through Bristol in large numbers to see our wonderful scenery which is not surpassed by any section.

Bristol As An Industrial Center

Bristol has many advantages which makes it a suitable location for industries.

There is an abundance of both male and female labor that can be secured for fair and reasonable compensation, and who believe in giving full value and service for every dollar paid them.

It has a climate suitable for working conditions on account of there being no extremes of either heat or cold, and practically no humidity. These climatic conditions insure the highest efficiency from employees.

There is an abundance of cheap electrical power, and located only about sixty miles from the famous Southwest Virginia Coal Fields with a very low freight rate.

Advantageous freight rates on both raw material and finished product, being on two trunk line railroads and using both the Official and Southern Classifications.

Factory sites can be secured at reasonable cost and buildings erected at cheap prices.

There is an abundance of raw material near Bristol both timber and ores.

Bristol has a number of industries of a diversified nature, therefore, it does not suffer from industrial depressions.

The Chamber of Commerce maintains a Traffic Department for the protection of its manufacturers and business interests.

Bristol As An Agricultural Center

Bristol is located in the center of a rich agricultural section which produces products of a diversified nature.

This section is recognized as one of the largest producers of export beef cattle and sheep, being located in the rich blue grass region.

In addition to this, dairying is now being developed, this country having been found to be very suitable for that purpose. There is at present being produced in the section within a radius of fifty miles, from 150,000 to 200,000 pound of milk per day, and there is a market here for at least four times this amount.

We have at Bristol a branch of one of the largest cheese manufacturers in the United States, and at Abingdon, Virginia just fifteen miles east of Bristol is located a branch of one of the countries largest condensaries.

Poultry raising is also carried on here on a large scale, there being located in Bristol a feeding and packing plant that can take care of two million dollars worth of poultry per year.

Other farm products of this section are: tobacco, wheat, corn and other grains and vegetables and trucking of all kinds.

The Chamber of Commerce maintains an Agricultural Department to assist in the development of the Dairy and Poultry industry.

Bristol As A Commercial Center

Bristol has always been known as a successful jobbing center. Practically every line of merchandise being distributed through Bristol's wholesale houses.

As a retail center, Bristol is known as the "Shopping Center of the Appalachians."

It has a trade area of from fifty to sixty miles with a trading population of 300,000.

With its hard-surfaced highways radiating in all directions from Bristol, it can be reached within a few hours from its farthest trading point.

Bristol is classified as having retail stores equal to those of any city of 100,000 population.

Bristol has excellent banking facilities, and it has always been the policy to assist all industrial and commercial enterprices of merit.

Bristol As An Educational and Religious Center

Bristol's educational advantages are exceptional, there being three colleges here, two for girls, Sullins College and Virginia Intermont College and King College for boys. These colleges have students from every state in the Union and from several foreign countries. They rank among the best Junior Colleges in the country and are on the accredited list of all the higher colleges and universities.

In addition to its colleges, it has two large high school and eight grammar schools, but several more schools on both sides of the city are contemplated.

There are 32 churches of all denominations and one of the most handsome Y. M. C. A.'s in either state.

While Bristol is always looking out for industrial development, it has never sacrificed its living conditions, as it has always felt it should never vary from its motto, "A Good Place to Live."

Most of all, the citizenship is of the highest type, Bristol citizens being descended from the stock that has made this country famous.

Summing it all up, I might quote one of our diseased attorneys, who made the statement, "Once drink of the water of Beaver Creek which flows through the town, then go away, and regardless of how long you stay, you will never be satisfied until you return and drink again."

Bristol welcomes you to do your trading, establish your business, build your factory and to make your home here.

Any information regarding the civic, business and industrial or commercial interests of Bristol will gladly be furnished by
